

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A method of preserving a food product from both deterioration due to microbial growth and oxidation of any constituent fats or oils which may be present within said food product comprises adding to the food product one or more phytosterols, phytostanols, or mixtures thereof.